July Patch Tuesday is a sizeable one, but no significant security risk. Microsoft resolved 130 new CVEs, including one public disclosure. The DHCP issue caused by the June 2025 update appears to be resolved. It is not reported as a known issue for Windows OS KBs for July. On the third-party updates side, you should definitely ensure your Google Chrome and Microsoft Edge updates are applied to resolve the zero-day exploit fixed in the June 30 update. Adobe released updates for the Creative Suite and more. Most have critical CVEs, but no exploited or disclosed CVEs.
